Monroe County Public Library Is An Equal Opportunity Employer

Monroe County Public Library announces an exciting opportunity for an experienced Communications and Marketing Professional.

Do you have a deep commitment to community engagement? Are you searching for a creative environment that values the importance of partnerships and service?

As a top-rated library, we are known for enriching the lives of our community by integrating our values of accessibility, freedom of expression, inclusiveness, integrity, lifelong learning, respect and service into everything we do; from our daily patron interactions to implementing our strategic plan.

MCPL professional positions are highly sought after and our busy public library enjoys strong support in a community that values education, arts, culture, and civic engagement. Learn more about Bloomington, Indiana at Visit Bloomington ^[1].

With a $7.5 million operating budget, 160 employees, facilities in Bloomington and Ellettsville, and a strong outreach program, the Library provides a full range of contemporary library services, plus an award-winning literacy program and a five-channel community television network.

The Communications and Marketing Manager will lead the Library's comprehensive marketing and communications strategy to support the library's mission and strategic directions, serve as a member of the administrative team, and work collaboratively with staff across the library to implement the strategy.

The position requires a minimum of a Bachelor's degree (Master's degree preferred) in a related field and three years of related community relations/communications/marketing experience. Three years of professional leadership and/or supervisory experience is also required.

To be included in the review of applications, submit your application and credentials by 5 p.m., June 5, 2013. For questions, contact [hr \[at\] mcpl \[dot\] info](mailto:hr@mcpl.info).
